

A few initial ideas that I think can strengthen and grow Educators Rising include a larger social media presence, more resources to clubs that represent educators rising, and overall trying to make a large impact in childrens lives this year. I believe that a larger social media presence that shows off what Educators Rising is can make an incredible impact on the coverage and awareness of educators rising and why it is so important. I speak at eighth grade orientations, freshman orientations and many other events to try and get children involved when they have the opportunity to. I personally describe educators rising as an organization to positively impact childrens lives while strengthening the minds of the future educators of the world. I think if we try to push educators rising more throughout the community, we can have more people involved and greatly change peoples lives. I personally always struggled with finding resources and things to do with the club in my high school, as the president I am always trying to better my community and give my fellow members opportunities for greatness. I think that if there were more resources for clubs to use, the clubs/classes would be even greater. I think trying to have goals for these groups to make by the end of the year, it will allow them to make a greater impact around their communities. I personally believe that educators rising has the potential to change the lives of children, offer community tutoring sessions, classes, and other events at places local to them to make the lives of families much easier. I would love to partner with an organization or make something where children are able to go after school to get help from local highschool and college students to have better test scores and grades. I would also love to set up a pen pal system where members can be connected with younger children to give them advice, and just have a friend when nobody else will listen. I believe that any of these things would greatly benefit those around us in more ways than one. Sometimes are best friends in life are those who mentor us. A few gaps I notice within the organization is overall just the lack of accessibility to resources for students and teachers to positively utilize the resources we do have. I also believe that personally going to the Wisconsin Educators Rising Summit conference, I think there could be better planning or overall ability to allow students to receive more adequate experiences at these conferences.
